ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus for a fault tolerant network element is described. In one embodiment of the invention, a computer implemented method comprises storing an operation and executing the operation idempotently with a network resource process.